Dr. Atkinson was a great instructor. He covered a lot of math which is usually when I lose interest in the class discussion but he kept us all very engaged.

Nate was awesome at explaining complex concepts. I love how he slowed down the subjects and really went through everything step by step with us as a class. He's going to be a fantastic professor.

Dr. Atkinson also greatly assisted me in this course. His presentations in class were well-prepared and he did a great job engaging the class by asking insightful questions and allowing the students to respond and participate. At one point in the course, I was able to attend office hours and discuss a hypothetical contract with Dr. Atkinson as we proposed changes that would increase the joint surplus. In doing so, I learned how to apply many of the concepts that were introduced in class. Needless to say, Dr. Atkinson is highly knowledgeable in this subject and certainly well qualified to teach advanced law students.

Nate's illustration is very clear and structured, he uses many examples that make me understand the concepts and principles easily, his teaching is very vivid and interactive. I found his teaching skills very good and his personality makes him a very easygoing instructor. Also, he always pays close attention to the students' reactions and he tries many ways to make sure all students understand. I can feel his passion towards teaching and his care for the students. I believe Nate will become a very popular and successful professor at a law school.

Appreciated the instructors preparation and energy to make material engaging. Provide more structured "wait time" prior to leading answer. Random, Socratic cold calling is acceptable, if on a clear random system.

Dr. Atkinson was clearly passionate and extremely knowledgeable on the subject matter. His passion made the material much more interesting. I thought he did a great job of knowing when and how to ask questions in order to force students think about the conclusions themselves and when to lecture (i.e. explain the conclusion himself).
